Salem (Ohio). Through failure to receive letters, G. did not stop at Pittsburgh, where hall was engaged and audience of c. fifteen hundred disappointed. Six meetings of Ohio A.S. Society held, all crowded. "Disunion has been enforced ... the religion of the land exposed." No "note of disapprobation." G. spoke five times. Other speakers: Miss Frances Ellen Watkins, Dr. Brooks, Marius R. Robinson, Josephine Griffin. Weather clear, mild. G. received warm welcome, many invitations to lecture. To Cleveland tomorrow, then Rochester. A.L.s. 4p. 8 1/8 x 5 in.

• Letter to Liberator

• Salem, O., Narrative of G.'s tour through Pennsylvania to Ohio, "with special reference to the Anniversaries of the Pennsylvania and Ohio Anti-Slavery Societies." Mentions hospitality of James S. and Abby H. Gibbons; meeting Mrs. Sedgwick of Lenox, Henry Bleby, missionary from Barbadoes; friends assembled at J. Miller McKim's in Germantown, especially James and Lucretia Mott. Generalized reflections suggested by smallness of West Chester meeting because of preceding horticultural fair. Testimony of •Pennsylvania A.S., Society in favor of dissolution of Union. Denies anti-slavery character of U.S. constitution. Tells of Robert Collyer's advocacy of singing before ~~un~~ical Quakers. Small meeting at Harrisburg. West in state depression.

Salem, (O.), Cannot go to Syracuse till Monday because of engagement in Cortland, (Pa.). Has no particular desire to give an Anti-Slavery lecture in Syracuse, because much has been heard on the subject there, but will do so if S. J. M. thinks it worth while. Has given S. J. M.'s message to M. R. Robinson and B. S. Jones. Robinson was pleased with the commendation of the Anti-Slavery Bugle. The anniversary of the Ohio Anti-Slavery Society has been a "magnetic occasion." The weather is beautiful. Is glad that S. J. M. is thinking of going to Europe.

To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman

No.26

Bellefonte, Pa., The writer labors alone for the Anti-Slavery cause. Says that it was just as well that the lecturers who came to her town did not try to speak. They would have been pelted with eggs. Speaks of an epidemic. "I am an old widow with only 2 beloved children alive ..." One is married to a slaveholder in the District of Columbia. Talks about herself. "I will give a Clear Deed for 2 acres wheare theare is stone enough on the spot for a house ..." Offers to build a house to be devoted to the Anti-Slavery cause, provided the addressee can loan her $1000.

Bellefonte, Pa. Regrets that the addressee's labors are confined to Eastern Pennsylvania. "This is the center county of the state." Expresses sympathy for the abolition cause, and profusely quotes Scripture. The writer had put her money into the hands of two merchants, and had improved the farm left her by her father, Col. James Dunlap. When the writer came to settle with the merchants, she found herself $1000 in their debt. Suggests to the addressee to send an agent, and the writer will sell her a hundred acres of land with a new house. Has prospects of recovering $20,000.
A.L.S. 4 p. 10 x 8 in.

A postscript states that [redacted] would enable the writer to sink the sum she owes the stockkeepers. "Your fair will I hope ennable you to do that for me."

The writer was introduced to a "Mr. Ellot•sic•" who, she was told, "was a gentleman that would put me on the right way of borrowing money on mortgage...but I must not say one word on abolition subjects." The writer, however, entered into an abolition argument, amply supported by references to Scripture until Mr.E. and the prothonotary at whose house they met fled out of the room.

Chester Springs, Pa.: Concerns the payment by the "Boston Friends" for the writer's consignment of frames to be sold at the Boston fair. The writer donated the wood and his trouble, and asks only for payment of one half the bill of the cabinet-maker, to whom he is still partly in debt. The writer requests that this matter be brought to the attention of Mrs. Chapman.

Chester Springs, Pa., The writer realizes that there has been some misunderstanding in regard to his object in sending the picture frames. He explains that, wishing to make some contribution to the cause and being poor, he thought of making frames out of the wood which was not burned in the Pennsylvania Hall fire, and charging the addressee only for the work of making them. This matter has been a source of perplexity to the addressee (the frames apparently having been lost). Wishes the addressee to come to the Pennsylvania State meeting.

Hospital Reserve-Artillery on the Baltimore Turnpike five miles from Gettysburg, Pa.: The writer wants to tell Mrs. Weston and all of them about the great battle near Gettysburg. The writer's Battery is all cut up. "I felt so bad that I could cry seeing our Horses all shot down we had so splendifit Horses." Recounts events: "the Reserve Artillery was called for - our Battery the 9th Mass. went in high Spirits... The Battle line was in a Shape of a Horse Shoe. We on the extreme left." Describes the Rebel advance under Longstreet: "they fought like Tigers." The infantry gave way, but the 9th Mass. Battery showed their brains and nerves. Just when the Rebels rushed on the guns, the Battery had no more ammunition left, so they were out-flanked. "The Order was now giving ~~givens~~ to leave - but where were our Horses?" The Kennett, Pa., The writer congratulates the addressees on the visit of the Laugel family. Heard from J. M. McKim that the addressees agreed with him "in his situation which I also accept as the wise one in these times ..." The writer spent the summer in a "quiet agricultural region," and may try living in the country in winter. A marginal note states: "Are you not rejoiced that the country is at last up to the printing of H. Martineau's History?"

Kimberton, (Pa.?), Thinks that her last letter must have been on board the President, a ship recently reported missing. Hopes that the contentions among the Abolitionists will end before the World's Anti-Slavery Convention starts. Lucretia Mott and others left the Yearly Meeting of the Quakers to go to the annual Anti-Slavery meeting in New York. The Quakers dismissed their Anti-Slavery committee. The New Organizationists also held their anniversary meeting last week. Tells of Joseph Sturge meeting Nathaniel Colver at a social gathering at which C. C. Burleigh, Lucretia Mott and I. Winslow were also present. Describes Colver and Sturge. Mentions a man named Candler, [redacted] friend of Sturge. Was pleased to hear of C. L. Remond's success abroad. Sturge wanted the women delegates to stay away from the World Convention. Com-

[Kimberton] Has been kept busy arguing with Quakers about their hostility to Lucretia Mott, and describing the places she saw on her trip to England. Describes the autumn countryside. Discusses race prejudice among the American Quakers. Mentions J. J. Gurney's book about West Indian Emancipation, which called forth the comment that the U.S. "is differently situated." Wished that Maria (W.) Chapman had been in England to oppose N. Colver. Discusses W. H. Harrison and M. Van Buren, the Presidential candidates. "Even ... Bradburn has blown a blast at Garrison ... Elizabeth J. Neal is expected home this day."

To the President of the Bank of the U.S.

[Philadelphia.] Has received but one discount during the past month. Has been accustomed to receiving four and believes it an unwise move on the part of the bank. Believes that it will force people to "fly to the brokers." Fears that the policy of the bank may be due to political influence, and desires to be reassured. A.L.S. 4p. 9 1/4 x 7 1/4 in.

Philadelphia. Read in "Mr. Poulson's Daily Advertiser" that Mrs.. Stansbury of Trenton, N.J. had given $1000 to the Colonization Society. Thinks Mrs. S. should have offered the money as a premium to master mechanics "to obtain their consent to take Coloured Children as Apprentices ..." Is greatly astonished that clergymen should favor colonization. Has never talked to a colored man who wanted to return to Africa. Mentions the fact that negroes fought for freedom in the Revolution. Clergymen should try to stop the domestic slave trade. Plans a meeting of negroes, to whom the Liberator will be made "more generally known." The contr'butions to the Liberator signed "Ada" and "A" were written by his daughters.

Philadelphia. Accepts with pleasure a draft for $100. Hopes that I. K.'s philanthropic efforts "will be richly rewarded in a pecuniary way." Thinks that the demand for W.L.Garrison's Thoughts on Colonization must necessarily increase. A Mr. Hinton is sending the minutes of a recent convention. The Liberators have been delivered regularly. Doubts if the New England Anti-Slavery Society's intention to found a manual labor school will have any effect in Philadelphia, where nothing has been planned anyway. The Philadelphia Abolitionists intend to suggest W. L. Garrison to A. Tappan as an agent to collect funds in England.

Philadelphia. The Board of the Philadelphia Female Anti-Slavery Society has, after renewed discussion, decided that the plan (of the Boston Society) was "expedient and desirable," although some members would have preferred recognition of "female members and delegates in the American Society." New York in the second week of May was suggested as the most likely place and time. The writer mentions a case in Philadelphia of a reputed slave woman imprisoned, awaiting the decree of a court. The Memorial of the Philadelphia Society makes larger demands on Congress than the Massachusetts, Petition.

Mrs. Lucretia Mott cannot undertake the essay on account of poor health. Many Philadelphians are interested in the struggle going on between the clergy and Garrison. The writer wants a copy of the annual report of the Boston Female Anti-Slavery Society. The writer likes the communication of William Ellery Channing to the public on the refusal of the Boston City government to grant the use of "the Hall (Faneuil Hall)" - "it makes the absurd excuses of [redacted] authorities appear ridiculous". Regrets the continued indisposition of Angelina Emily Grimké. Doubts that the New England winters would suit the Grimkés.

Philadelphia. Came to Philadelphia with H.C. Wright, joined by Whittier and Rev. and Mrs. Root. Staying with Quaker Edward Needles. Saw newly erected Pennsylvania Hall. Visited Grimkés, mentioned to Angelina his fear of her being influenced by Weld's sectarianism. Gives his view of religion. Gives humorous description of John Gurney, English Orthodox Friend. Tells of protest against discussion on slavery held by Alvan Stewart and others on steamboat; captain broke up meeting. Neither Whittier nor other Quakers may attend Weld-Grimké wedding; Sarah Grimké will be excommunicated.

Philadelphia. The writer, having received from the addressee news of Maria Chapman's convalescence, is relieved of anxiety. Refers to a New England convention in which Abby Kelley took a prominent part, and remarks on the jealous guarding of prerogatives by the gentlemen Abolitionists. Refers briefly to the burning of Pennsylvania Hall. Says that some of "our timid friends" have been upset by the resolution passed by the women's convention respecting the duty of Abolitionists to associate with colored Americans. The opponents of the resolution want the colored people to issue a disclaimer, in order to forestall further hostile actions. Thinks the opposition is based on  prejudice against color.

Philadelphia, The writer wishes to remove the impression that "any of our thorough Anti-Slavery friends are turning back & discouraging the colored people from cooperating with our movements." It is only half-way Abolitionists, like Dr. Joseph? Parrish who are "now quaking with fear." The latter has already called the colored people together for the purpose of protesting against "such intercourse as that resolution contemplated."

Philadelphia. The letter is concerned with the "difficulties" in Massachusetts. The general impression in this region (Philadelphia) is that the conflict has grown out of "personal animosities" and people fail to see "that the question at issue is whether the original principles shall be sacrificed to political or religious sectarianism." Many, even Friends, fear that the participation of women at the meetings and the formation of the Non-Resistance Society will ruin the anti-slavery cause. The writer has told John Greenleaf Whittier that he misrepresented the state of things in Massachusetts. The writer is assured that the delegates from the New York Committee attended the quarterly meeting with the intention of forming another anti-slavery society in Massachusetts.

Thinks the French terms of emancipation are unsatisfactory. "I have read O'Connell's appeal to the Anti-Slavery people of your country." Sends copies of a work on Texas by Benjamin Lundy. Texas claims to be opposed to the foreign slave trade, which is still carried on in Cuba. It has become customary to say that a criminal still at large some time after the commission of a crime "has gone to Texas." Some free negroes recently emigrated to Trinidad. Dissension in Abolitionist ranks is caused partly by disagreement as to the advocacy of human rights.

Philadelphia. Received English papers containing speeches by G. Thompson on British India and the opium trade. "...the expected war with China is much talked of ... Our political men say there is a great danger of a war between G. Britain & the United States." Doubts if the substitution of Indian cotton for American cotton would prove to the slaveholder the sinfulness of Slavery. Was surprised to learn that wealthy people in England were not Abolitionists. Is sending some books to E. (P.) N. "I do not know who will go to the great convention," but Garrison and Mr. & Mrs. James Mott expect to be there.

Philadelphia. The writer comments on the new book, Despotism in America. The writer wishes David Lee and Lydia Maria Child would settle in Philadelphia. Anna M. Hopper wishes that Mrs. Child would open a school for young children, but the writer is more concerned that she should be sent to the World's Convention. Referring to the division between New and Old Organizations, the writer has hoped that J. G. Whittier would have his eyes opened, but he "seems to be blinded". Relates an incident at Smyrna, Delaware, where D. Neall was tarred and feathered.

Philadelphia. Finds that W. Goodell is "perfectly New-Organized. ... He is determined, like E. Wright, Leavitt & Co. to lay all the opposition to the political party scheme to Non-Resistance." J. G. Whittier is trying to discredit the Mass. Anti-Slavery Society. Thomas Earle will only accept the nomination for Vice-President from a democratic party which favors universal suffrage. H. C. W. expects much excitemenat at both the New York and Phila. Anti-Slavery annual meetings. The sale of the Emancipator was arranged so that
J. Leavitt would get it.

[Philadelphia] Is much disturbed by the effect politics is having on the Abolitionists. Quotes from a letter of William O. Duvall, which describes the actions of Gerrit Smith and Alvan Stewart when the former was nominated for Governor of New York. Beriah Green and W. Goodell finally persuaded G. S. to accept the nomination. H. C. W. condemns G. S.'s lack of conscientious scruples. Thinks G. S.'s poor health may be a factor in his inconsistent conduct. "C. C. Burleigh is doing battle nobly for the right & the true, but the noble man is wearing out." H. C. W. is having an argument with the First Church in Newbury. W. Goodell has asked for H. C. W.'s opinion of "abolishing slavery by legislative action." H. C. W. praises L.G.'s refusal to take his seat in the World's Anti-Slavery Convention.
